

NEBRASKA

The Great American Rail-Trail® crosses from Iowa into Nebraska on the iconic Bob Kerrey Pedestrian Bridge—a 3,000-foot cable-suspension structure over the Missouri River. The preferred route of the Great American Rail-Trail in Nebraska weaves through the urban areas of Omaha and Lincoln, connecting these population centers to the western, more rural, part of the state along one of the longest and most famous rail-trails in the country—the Cowboy Recreation and Nature Trail.

In Nebraska, the trail is expected to generate annually:

$1.3M
 in new tax revenue

$9.9M
 GDP contribution

$14.5M
 in visitor
 spending

1,700,000
 trips

170
 new jobs

$6.1M
 in labor income

